How long is your sleeping bag? How heavy is your backpack? How much water is there in your water bottle? When we don't know and we can't measure something, we have to guess, or estimate, measurements. To help us estimate, we can think about other objects we know. For example, Alice knows her tent is 4 kg. Her backpack feels a bit heavier. Alice estimates that her backpack is about 5 kg. When we're estimating, we use words like it's about ...or it's more than ..., but less than ... For example: The tent is about 250 cm long. Or: The tent is more than 2 m long, but less than 3 m long

4. Answer the questions.

- 1 What units of measurement do we use to find out how long something is?
- 2 How many centimeters are there in 3 meters?
- 3 Why do we sometimes have to estimate measurements?
- 4 What words do we use when we estimate?

6. Find five objects. Estimate and then measure how long and how heavy each one is
